Visual Designer, Art Direction, Motion Graphics & Branding

Hello.

I'm a visual designer and art director with 5+ years of experience building brands across campaign, motion, and experiential.

Most recently I was Lead Visual Artist at boAt, India's #1 audio and wearable brand, where I directed creative for high-profile partnerships with Netflix, Warner Bros, Disney, and Dolby, taking work from initial concept through to final delivery across digital, social, retail, and print.

That experience has shaped how I approach every brief, whether it's a brand partnership, a product launch, or a campaign built from scratch. I bring the same level of thinking and craft to each one, and I'm always looking for work that pushes both.

I recently completed my MA in Design for Visual Communication at UAL London, and I'm now based in London looking for brand and visual design roles where I can keep doing work I'm proud of.

Boat x Netflix

When boAt partnered with Netflix to launch the Stream Edition, the brief was to create something that felt genuinely cinematic, not just co-branded. I led the end-to-end creative across the campaign, designing a visual identity that pulled from Netflix's world of stories and brought it into boAt's product language.

The work spanned a landing page, e-commerce banners on Amazon and Flipkart, social content, OOH billboards across major Indian cities, and a Times of India front page ad for pan-India circulation. The campaign featured Kiara Advani and characters from Money Heist and Stranger Things, and ran across both digital and print at scale.

Boat

boAt is India's #1 audio and wearable brand, and for nearly five years I was the Lead Visual Artist behind its creative output. I directed brand partnerships with Netflix, Warner Bros, Disney, and Dolby, led the visual identity for product launches across smartwatches, earbuds, and headphones, and took campaigns from concept through to execution across digital, social, e-commerce, retail, product packaging and large-format OOH.

Highlights include the boAt x iShowSpeed activation during the Cricket World Cup, submitted to Cannes Lions with 71M+ reach and zero media spend, India's first K-pop metaverse concert (Floatverse). I also led the launch of boAt's first smartwatch, which sold out in 30 seconds, and was awarded the Star Performer Award for my contribution to brand.

BEFORE

I spearheaded the art direction for the photoshoot and used photomanipulation to compose the final images unveiling boAt's latest innovation, the Storm Pro smartwatch. Emphasizing a larger-than-life aesthetic, the objective was to showcase the watch within an immersive environment.

boAt x ISHOWSPEED

AN UNEXPECTED COLLAB THAT BLEW THE INTERNET OVER

The Objective
The World Cup is one of the biggest media opportunity. Making it the most advertising heavy topical event too. The intent was to break the clutter of traditional ads with 0 media spends.

The Idea
We got the biggest fan of cricket, an International YouTube sensation to INDIA for the very first time during one of the craziest festivals: The India v/s Pakistan World Cup. Leveraging his live feed coverage of his authentic Indian experience through organic product placement.

The Result
The news of SPEED coming to India spread like wild fire, as paps, fans and the meme community followed and tracked every move. We made sure, boAt- an Indian brand was a part of SPEED's authentic Indian Experience.

WATCH HER PLAY

CHEER OUT LOUD FOR ALL THE RIGHT REASONS

THE INSIGHT:
We cheer for women in every aspect "around" sports. The camera and the audience always gives women the well deserved attention as a sports presenter, as a fan in the stands, as a cheerleader but what about when she's playing a sport?

WE STILL CHEER FOR HER uniform
WE STILL CHEER FOR HER beauty
WE STILL CHEER FOR HER figure
WE STILL CHEER FOR HER body

With the increase in viewership for women sports, it was time to challenge the creepy camera angles and sports entertainment limited to her body than her skill. This women's day, watch her play and cheer out loud but for all the right reasons.

THE IDEA
Women are a delight to watch. Aren't they? But is it really her talent we are really looking at? Sports is flooded with comments like the 'Best looking sportsperson', the 'National Crush', 'Gorgeous shot' when referring to women playing any sport. So, this Women's Day we invited people to #WatchHerPlay with billboards that made them introspect. Featuring a copy so concise that it took just a single glance to capture the attention and etch in the memory. Conveying a much deeper meaning!

Just 2 words that created a HUGE IMPACT.

THE RESULT
The billboards became a viral sensation, sparking conversations across social media.

Lunar Vista Smartwatch

Lunar Vista was boAt's premium circular smartwatch, and I designed the full product landing page to match its positioning as the most refined watch in the lineup.

The brief was clear hierarchy and feature-led storytelling, so I built the page around the watch's standout specs, particularly the 1.52" HD display, leading with cinematic visuals and letting the product do the talking. The work also extended to social media launch assets across the boAt Instagram.

Ultima Select Smartwatch

Ultima Select was boAt's premium smartwatch, and I led the end-to-end design for its launch, covering the product landing page and a full suite of ad banners. The watch had a premium metallic identity, so I leaned into a dark, high-contrast visual language that communicated resilience and precision.

Each section of the page was built around a key feature, from the 2.01" AMOLED display to Bluetooth calling and health tracking, designed to convert as much as inspire.

Airdopes 131 Elite ANC

The Airdopes 131 Elite ANC was boAt's bestselling earbuds range, upgraded with flagship-level active noise cancellation. I designed the product landing page with a focus on immersive visuals and clear feature communication, using bold imagery and smooth gradients to convey the premium audio experience.

The work extended across social media posts, performance ad banners, and e-commerce assets for Amazon and Flipkart, creating a cohesive digital campaign across every touchpoint.

The Drunken Botanist

During my time at Ideatic, The Drunken Botanist, a craft beer and cocktails bar, came to us to mark their first anniversary. I led the creative end to end, conceiving a surreal fictional universe built around the character of the Botanist.

The work spanned photomanipulation, social campaign design, a short film I scripted and directed, an original soundtrack with album artwork, and a rap I wrote and recorded with a friend who produces music. The campaign ran under #1YearOfDrunkenness and brought together design, film, and music into one cohesive brand moment.

Surreal Composites

This is a body of personal work I've built over the years, starting from a simple curiosity about what I could do with the photos I was already taking. I began experimenting with photomanipulation, compositing my own shots with found imagery to create surreal, cinematic scenes, mostly themed around space, solitude, and the absurdity of everyday life.

Each piece is self-shot and self-edited, and the series grew organically through Instagram, where the platform pushed me to keep experimenting with new techniques and software. It's the work I do for myself, and it's what keeps the creative muscle sharp outside of client briefs.

My artistic journey began when I started playing around the images I clicked and trying to make surreal artworks using them.

Instagram, as a platform has aided me in sharing my work with the world. It has also motivated me to experiment with a lot of different techniques and softwares, being able to learn and grow from it.
